General Session 1: Trying to Outrun the Wind

Dr. Valerie Patrick

Day 1 Keynote Speaker

This past year was much like driving through a fierce wind and thunderstorm - one we kept expecting to subside, but instead it hammered us for what seemed like 14 months. The opening general session of the 2015 Biodiesel Conference & Expo will feature a discussion about how we can get ahead of the storm and move the industry forward to a brighter, more stable future. Hear from NBB's Joe Jobe, energy industry CEOs, and Dr. Valerie Patrick, a former strategist for Bayer North America.

What do you think will really sell your boss on sending you to Fort Worth in January?

- A. Cheering at a Cowboy's Game
- B. Partying at Billy Bob's
- C. Kickin' it at the Fort Worth Stock Show and Rodeo
- D. Connecting with hundreds of biodiesel industry experts

Of course D is the answer. Connect with industry experts at the biggest biodiesel event of the year. (And while you're there take advantage of A, B, & C - just don't mention those to your boss.)

Dear Paul,

Have you ever gone on a road trip without looking at a map? I use my smart phone anytime I'm exploring someplace new. It's simple and part of the process, but vital to get to where you want to go.

Similarly it's challenging to navigate the industry's unpredictable terrain. That's why we put together the National Biodiesel Conference and Expo.

This conference is your insider's guide to biodiesel. It's your road map to navigate policies, regulations, and news. Let it be your advantage.

See you in Texas!

Donnell
